

Wind farm developers generally do not take into account the neighbors who will suffer serious injuries to their health and will lose a large percent of their property's value. The developers only aim is to make profits and no one acknowledges the enormous cost to neighbors.

Any subsidy given "windfarm" developers should require care in siting: no turbines placed within a mile and a quarter (2 kilometers) of habitation. The government should not be giving public money to citizens who injure their neighbors