Rising Childcare Costs are Squeezing Low- and Middle-Income Families

- In the U.S., 65% of children under five live in a household where both parents work, and 70% of parents experience difficulty in paying for childcare.
 - American families spend up to $15,600 on daycare each year for just one child.
- Over 47 million American families claim the Child Tax Credit.
 - Bidenflation increased the cost of raising a child by over 21%.
- For families ready to open their hearts and homes to a child in need, adoption can come with a heartbreaking price tag, as high as $60,000.
 - Enhances the adoption tax credit and indexes it for inflation, ensuring it does not lose its value.
